

Mapping the borough's WW2 Bombsites - Transcription of A.R.P Warden's Diaries

Hackney Museum are looking for volunteers to help support and research content for a new display that identifies and tells the stories bombsites and people affected in WW2.

About This Event

Hackney Museum is looking for volunteers to help research content for a new display that identifies and tells the stories of these bombsites and the people affected. With opportunities for research, transcribing first hand accounts or street photography.

Transcription volunteers will help make first hand accounts of the bombing of civilians during the Second World War accessible for visitors by typing up the text from historical documents. These records will then be used to create touch-screen digital interactive in Hackney Museum for visitors to bring the stories of those impacted by the Blitz to life.
